

Losing the weight is only half of it.

If you are on a GLP-1 like Ozempic, Wegovy, Mounjaro or Zepbound, this page is about the part almost nobody explains: why you might feel worse while the scale says you are doing great, and what to do about it.

Here is what is actually happening. These medications send your body a strong instruction, and carrying it out burns through raw material: protein, vitamins, minerals. Meanwhile you are eating far less than you used to, so less is coming in. That gap is where almost every bad symptom comes from.

That is good news, because a gap can be filled. Most people are told these symptoms are just part of it. Often they are not. They are a shortage, and shortages have names.

What you might be feeling, and what it usually means

IF YOU NOTICE THIS	IT IS OFTEN THIS	WHAT HELPS
Exhausted by mid-afternoon, cannot get going	Low iron stores, magnesium and B12. Also the cause of most night cramps and twitching.	Multivitamin with iron, B vitamins, magnesium
Hair thinning or shedding more	Not enough protein coming in, and low zinc. Hair is the first thing the body stops spending on.	Protein at every meal, zinc, multivitamin
Feeling flat, not sad exactly, just nothing	The chain your body uses to make mood chemistry runs on B6, magnesium and omega-3. It runs dry quickly.	B vitamins, magnesium, fish oil
Muscles feel soft, strength dropping	You are losing muscle along with fat. This is the one to take seriously, because it is hard to get back.	Protein, resistance exercise, magnesium
New joint, tendon or shoulder aches	Fast weight loss puts real demand on connective tissue. It needs collagen and vitamin C to keep up.	Collagen, vitamin C
Nausea, constipation, feeling full for hours	Your stomach is emptying much more slowly. Normal for the medication, but manageable.	Smaller meals, fluids and electrolytes, fiber

What we recommend you take while you are on it

Essential Multi

The foundation. Covers the vitamins and minerals you are no longer getting enough of from food.

D3 with K2

For energy, mood, immune function and bone. Most people are low before they ever start.

Omega Pure EPA-DHA

For mood, brain and inflammation. This is the one people notice most for the flat feeling.

Collagen Renew

For joints, tendons, skin and hair while you are losing weight quickly. Also helps sleep.

Two habits matter as much as anything in that box. Get protein into every meal even when you are not hungry, and work your muscles two or three times a week. Those two protect the muscle you have.

CALL THE OFFICE, DO NOT WAIT

Severe stomach pain that will not let up, especially if it goes through to your back. Vomiting you cannot stop. Signs of dehydration. Yellowing of skin or eyes. Any thought of harming yourself. None of these are things to push through.
