Joint Pain and Osteoarthritis

Knees, hips and hands

Osteoarthritis (OA) is the most common kind of arthritis, and it changes the whole joint: the smooth cartilage on the ends of the bones thins and cracks, the bone underneath grows spurs, and the joint lining can swell. It shows up most in knees, hips and hands and affects about 528 million people worldwide. Moving more, carrying less weight and the right nutrients help many people stay active.

HOW IT CAN FEEL

- Pain when you use the joint, easing with rest
- Stiff on waking or after sitting, loose within 30 minutes
- Creaking, grinding or clicking as it bends
- Some swelling, or a joint that feels unsteady
- Stairs, kneeling or opening jars get harder
- Hard knobs on the finger joints

GET CHECKED PROMPTLY IF

- A hot, red, very swollen joint, worse with fever: go today
- Morning stiffness over 30 minutes, or many joints at once
- It began with a fall or injury, or is worsening fast
- The joint locks, gives way or changes shape

WHAT RAISES YOUR RISK

Getting older · Extra body weight · An old joint injury · Being a woman · Family history · Heavy lifting or kneeling work · Weak thigh muscles

KNOW YOUR NUMBERS

1 lb → 4 lb
Each pound you lose takes about 4 pounds of load off your knee with every step.

30 min
OA stiffness usually eases within 30 minutes of getting up. Longer? Get checked.

150 min
a week of walking, cycling or water exercise, plus 2 days of strength work.

Lifestyle Recommendations

Cartilage has no blood supply. Moving is how it gets fed.

Move most days
150 minutes a week of walking, cycling or swimming. Short bouts count.

Build strength
Thigh and hip work 2 days a week takes load off the joint.

Lighten the load
Each pound lost takes about 4 pounds off your knees with every step.

Tai chi or yoga
Slow, steady moves ease stiffness and build balance.

Eat to calm
Fish, olive oil, beans, nuts and colorful plants. Fewer sugary drinks.

Heat and support
Warmth for stiffness, ice after a flare, a cane in the other hand.
